Assembly Democrats Defeat the La Guardia Bill for Fourth Time

Mayor's Representatives Now Wonder if They Have Lost the Support of Governor Lehman—One of Hottest Debates in Assembly in Years.

Kingston, N. Y., March 29 (AP).—Mayor La Guardia's representatives wondered today if they had lost the support of Governor Lehman, chief sponsor for the New York city economy bill, and with it all hope of passing the bill at this session of the legislature.

The governor's wrath descended on the La Guardia lieutenants last night for tactics which had angry Assembly Democrats to hand the bill its fourth defeat. For 13 weeks the Democratic governor has opposed the legislators of his own party in an effort to give Mayor La Guardia an economy bill. Yesterday, when he thought the measure was ready to pass, the La Guardia forces attempted to pass the measure without giving the Democrats time for a conference on certain amendments.

"I was absolutely amazed," Governor Lehman said. "I had personally informed the mayor's representative, Mr. Paul Windeke, the corporation counsel of New York, that the Democratic members desired a party conference and that I had every reason to believe that because of my efforts the bill after such a conference would be passed by the Assembly today."

The bill was defeated, 85 yeas to 59 nays, 15 votes short of passage. Democrats shook their fists and hurled angry exclamations at Assemblyman Abbott Low Moffat when he called the bill up for a vote. Ignoring their request for a recess to go into conference.

"Mr. Moffat has shown very clearly that he does not want this bill," declared Irwin Steingut, the Democratic minority leader.

Other Democrats took up the charge that the La Guardia forces do not want their own bill passed.

A messenger kept Governor Lehman advised of the debate, one of the bitterest in the Assembly in many years.

"You will be sorry when election comes around," Assemblyman Ernest Lappano, New York city Republican-Fusionist and one of the La Guardia supporters, shouted at the Democrats. "You didn't need a conference. You knew all the time what the amendments were. You're not kidding me."

"The gentleman is having an attack of high blood pressure," Assemblyman Jacob H. Livingston, Brooklyn Democrat, shot back. "Why Moffat and La Guardia are tickled to death this bill will be defeated."

Moffat stood up. "You Democrats have been chiseling along, delaying this bill for weeks," he declared. "This request for a conference is just another stall."

Governor Lehman said the refusal to grant "an ordinary routine legislative courtesy" was "entirely inexplicable" to him. "I do not know what motives inspired this action," he said. "For nearly three months I have worked continuously to pass Mayor La Guardia's bill, even in the face of the almost unanimous opposition of my own party."

The governor did not say whether the incident would affect his attitude toward the New York city legislation. Several assemblymen said they thought the bill was doomed at this session and could only be passed at a special session this summer. The measure permits La Guardia's board of estimate to order for long-term and job consolidation for economy purposes. The city cannot get federal assistance unless it can balance its budget.

Senate Passes the Cotton Control Bill

Washington, March 29 (AP).—The Senate passed the Bankhead compulsory cotton control bill and returned it to the House for action on amendments.

The vote on final passage was 56 to 39.

The bill, described by its supporters as having administration support, is designed to stabilize cotton prices by limiting production in the coming cotton year to 10,000,000 bales and trying a prohibitive tax on the staple produced in excess of quotas allocated to producers.

The House tax of 50 per cent of the market value, or not less than 5 cents a pound, was raised by the Senate to 75 per cent or not less than 8 cents a pound.

Termed an emergency measure, the bill would apply for only one year as passed by the Senate.

The House bill would give the measure a two-year life with congressional power to extend it another year.

Treasury Receipts.

Washington, March 29 (AP).—The Treasury department today announced that receipts for the month of March were $4,469,969.51; expenditures, $3,611,453.91; balance, $858,515.60. Receipts for the month, $22,226,566.62. Receipts for the fiscal year since July 1 were $2,294,374,558.55; expenditures, $4,772,811,675.41, including $2,785,929,885.56 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $2,477,936,816.85; gold assets, $7,665,222,632.00.

Says President May Ask Congress To Provide Additional Revenue

Democratic Leader Says It Was Entirely Possible That Chief Executive Would Ask New Taxes to Meet Expenditures of Independent Offices Law—What New Law Means to Veterans and Federal Employees.

Washington, March 29 (AP).—Representative Byrnes, Democratic leader, told newspapermen today it was "entirely possible" that President Roosevelt would ask new taxes to meet expenditures caused by passage of the independent offices bill over his veto.

The measure, providing additional appropriations for war veterans and government employees, was enacted into law last night when the Senate joined the House in overriding President Roosevelt's wishes.

It was estimated by the President in his veto message that the expenditures authorized by the legislation would exceed budget estimates by $225,000,000.

"I do not know the President's plans," Byrnes added, "but in view of the position he expressed in his veto message, it is entirely possible that he will ask Congress to provide additional revenue."

If the Congress wants to help the President balance the budget it would look as though it would have to raise additional taxes.

It was pointed out, however, that new taxes or increased rates might be added to the tax bill already passed by the House and now pending in the Senate.

Byrnes laughed at Republican statements that President Roosevelt has suffered the "worst defeat in recent years on the independent offices bill."

"Why," he asserted, "only four years ago last June, the House passed 290 to 14 a Spanish War veterans pension bill over President Hoover's veto."

"President Hoover got only 11 votes; President Roosevelt got 72."

Now that Congress has gone constitutional, the President may ask Congress to provide additional revenue.

What New Law Means

Here's what the new independent offices law means to veterans and federal employees compared with the previous law and regulations:

Twenty-nine thousand World War veterans are restored to the rolls permanently at 75 per cent of what they were getting prior to the Economy Act of 1933. The compensation will depend on the degree of disability presumed to have had service origin. Review boards acting under the new law will strike these men from the lists because of lack of proof that their injuries or diseases were the result of war duty.

Permanently disabled World War veterans will get $100 a month instead of $90 as at present.

An unestimated number of Spanish American War veterans are restored to the rolls at 75 per cent of their old pensions. Review boards also have eliminated this group because they could not prove service origin for their disabilities. Widows and dependents also are restored at 75 per cent.

Federal employees who are now working at 15 per cent less than they were getting prior to the Economy Act will get back one-third of this cut as of February 1 this year and another third July 1.

Frederick P. Clark Gets Important Post At Montclair, N. J.

Kingston High School Graduate, Whose Parents Live in Kingston, Is Named Resident Planning Engineer of Important Metropolitan Suburb—Will Assume Duties April 1.

Frederick P. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Clark of 28 South Manor avenue, Kingston, a graduate of Kingston High School in 1926, and at present assistant planning engineer for the Fairfield County Planning Association of Connecticut, was appointed Wednesday, March 27, to the position of Resident Planning Engineer for the Montclair, N. J., Town Planning Board, to succeed Bernard H. Edly, resigned.

The Montclair Times says of Mr. Clark's appointment:

"The Planning Board yesterday issued the following statement concerning the new appointee, who will assume his new duties April 1:

"Mr. Clark is a graduate of Cornell in the Architectural Department where he specialized in city planning, taking as his thesis in his fifth year the 'Planning of a Modern Industrial City.' He was engaged for several years on map and topographical surveying work in Kingston, New York, and is now Assistant Planning Engineer for the Fairfield County Planning Association of Connecticut.

New England to develop a comprehensive plan for its future growth and Mr. Clark has been closely identified with this project for some time. Detailed studies were made of population, growth and distribution; land use, zoning and land subdivision; circulation, highways and parkways, parks and playgrounds, and other features of a comprehensive plan.

"Mr. Clark comes to Montclair highly recommended by Mr. Woodruff, the planning engineer of the Fairfield County Planning Association, and also by David Shurtleff of the National Conference on City Planning."

"As the Town Engineering Department, through its close cooperation with the Town Planning Board, provides the necessary construction engineering experience, it seemed desirable to select an engineer for the Planning Board who could supplement that by experience in special planning problems. Mr. Clark will admirably meet this need."

"Through the courtesy of The Society of Engineers the need of the Town Planning Board for an engineer was made widely known and a number of Montclair men inquired about the position. While many of these men had excellent training in construction engineering and in some other branches of engineering, none had the more specialized town planning experience."

May Establish New Public Market In Kingston This Year

Committee of Producers Met with Mayor Heiselman and Laws and Rules Committee of Common Council Wednesday Night—To Take Up Matter at Next Council Meeting.

The question of whether Kingston shall again establish a wholesale public market will be taken up at the April meeting of the Common Council when it is expected that the Laws and Rules Committee will submit a report on the question.

A public market in Kingston was thoroughly discussed Wednesday evening when a committee consisting of Leslie Herring, Albert Kurdt, John F. McCreary and Milton J. Walker met with Mayor C. J. Heiselman and the Laws and Rules Committee of the Common Council at the city hall Wednesday night.

Kingston during the Canfield administration maintained a public market on Field Court and during the summer of 1921 the producers sold $72,000 worth of farm produce at the market.

In late years a public market was not held under the auspices of the city government.

ABC Continuation As Permanent Group Seems Certain Today

Problem Now Current Is Whether Measure Will Be Adopted This Session or in 1935—Prohibition Reform Groups Assert Themselves, Asking Wise Action.

A continuation of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board as New York's agency for enforcement of prohibition agency today appeared more certain than at any time since the liquor controversy arose.

Whether the permanent plan will be adopted at the present session of the legislature or at the 1935 session, however, was problematical. At any rate, the leaders are agreed that the life of the ABC board should be extended until February 1, 1935, if a permanent law is not passed by April 29.

Several of the speakers at yesterday's public hearing asked that final action on the liquor bill be postponed until next year so that the lawmakers might have more time to study the question. Most of the speakers were of the opinion that the permanent system should embody substantially the same provisions as the temporary law contains.

The question as to whether drinking at bars should be permitted still remains to be determined.

One of those who asked that action on a permanent law be carried over until 1935 was Mrs. Joseph M. Ferrer, representing the citizens' committee for sane liquor laws. This is an organization made up of the women's organization for national prohibition reform, the association against the prohibition amendment and the voluntary committee of lawyers, all bodies which worked for repeal.

"Because we worked for and accomplished repeal," Mrs. Ferrer said, "we have a right to demand that no law be hastily passed or proposed. We must have a law which is fair, logical and enforceable."

"In the light of the laws of the other states, we find that the interim law now in operation in New York is far superior in its provisions to those of any other state which has passed permanent law, but we know that much time and study should still be devoted to the formulation of a permanent law."

Several speakers, including Fred A. Victor, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and Ray Hofford, executive vice president of the State Real Estate Association, favored the creation of a state authority which would be given a monopoly on all liquor distribution in New York state.

Most of the discussion, however, was directed at the Kleinfield bill which proposes the continuation of the present system. The manufacturers and dealers were particularly interested in this plan. They praised the control board highly for its work in handling the liquor traffic during the past year.

Their chief objections to the Kleinfield bill were concerned with license fees. Generally, they felt that the fees were too high, even as reduced yesterday in a bill which was enacted as a companion measure to the Kleinfield bill, temporary extending the ABC board's life until October 1.

The new schedule of license fees, which has been approved by both houses, is as follows:

Reduction of a distillery license from $15,000 to $7,500 and wholesalers from $4,800 to $2,400; creation of a new license for retailers with a fee of $5,000; licensing of clubs, hotels and restaurants on a pro rata basis when open only a part of the year as summer resorts.

The bill provides for a new combination liquor, wine and beer license with fee as follows:

$1,200 in the counties of New York, Kings, Bronx and Queens; $800 in the county of Richmond and cities having a population of more than 100,000 and less than 1,000,000; $500 in cities of more than 100,000 and less than 1,000,000; $200 elsewhere in the state. Fees for clubs would be one-half.

Fees for off the premises consumption would be $500 in cities of more than 1,000,000 (formerly $1,200); $300 in cities of more than 100,000 and $200 elsewhere.

A new license is created for the combination sale of wines and beer for consumption on the premises, at the rate of $200 a year in cities of 100,000 or more and $150 per year elsewhere.

The fee for a retail off-the-premise beer and wine store increased from $50 to $400 a year, except that where the premises are situated outside a city or village, or in a village of less than 1,500, the fee is $200, instead of $25.

VIENNA BARS 100 FOREIGN MAGAZINES FROM NEWSSTANDS

Vienna, March 29 (AP).—One hundred foreign publications were banned from newsstand sale today by a government order, issued in a drive to sweep what the administration considers immoral or otherwise objectionable newspapers and magazines off Vienna's streets.

The list of prohibitions names the Saturday Evening Post, Variety, True Story Magazine, The American Magazine, Paris Plaisir, La Vie Parisienne, Paris Plaisir, Pearson's Magazine, The Daily Sketch, The News Chronicle and 94 other foreign publications.

The order becomes effective immediately.

It was not stated upon what grounds the American and British periodicals were banned.

(Obviously, the objections to some of the publications banned are not on moral grounds.)

Letters Asked Associated Gas To Pay Village Campaign Expenses

Letters Purporting To Bear Signature of State Senator W. T. Thayer of New York Introduced Before Commission—Senator Says He Did Not Know Whether He Wrote Letters Read Before The Federal Board.

Washington, March 29 (AP).—Letters, purporting to bear the signature of State Senator W. T. Thayer of New York, asking the Associated Gas and Electric Companies to pay village campaign expenses in Chateaugay, N. Y., were introduced today in testimony before the Federal Power Commission.

Thayer, member of the New York Senate from the thirty-fourth district, is a member of its public service committee.

The letters, dated March 28, 1927, and April 3, 1928, were addressed to S. J. Magee, vice president of Associated Gas. They were presented by A. M. McDermott, commission examiner, who said they were taken from the files of the J. G. White Management Corporation, a subsidiary of Associated Gas.

Chateaugay, N. Y., March 29 (AP).—State Senator Warren T. Thayer said today he "did not know" whether he wrote letters read before the federal power commission today and described as his correspondence with power companies in 1927 and 1928.

"I'll have to look through my files," Senator Thayer said. "I don't know," the Senator said, "if it is my handwriting and signature on my stationery. I might have written them. I'll make an effort to check up."

The Republican Senator is one of the prominent members of the New York legislature which was recently stirred by Republican State Chairman W. Kingsland May's charge of "power control." May declared that the Republican-controlled Assembly was influenced by power companies. All but a few of his own party members voted against his attempt tooust Assembly Clerk Fred Hammond.

Thayer was sitting in his law office discussing Governor Lehman's utility "reform" bills with a friend when he was advised of the developments at Washington.

"I can't remember what I wrote seven years ago," he said. "I was just arguing over the governor's bills with a friend. I told him I was for some of them and against some. If any municipality can raise the money for power plants, I am willing to vote for the governor's municipal ownership bill, but provided the municipality is required to take over the private plant at a reasonable price."

The municipal ownership bill is the chief bill in the New York governor's program.

Governor Lehman was advised of the letters read to the power commission, but had no comment.

Air Concerns Puzzled Over Air Mail Bids

Heads of Aviation Interests Will Try To Get Farley to Clarify Call for New Estimates—Reorganization Order a Stickler.

Washington, March 29 (AP).—Some aviation concerns sought today to have the administration clarify its call for new air mail bids.

Out of four air line officials who commented in the capital, three said they would ask for more light on Postmaster General Farley's order. Farley had said that former carriers of the air mail must conform to the new terms for the bids again.

The fourth, John H. Kohler, president of Eastern Aviation Corporation, which previously had a mail contract, but which could not operate any of the 15 routes to be carried. All his planes are amphibians.

The other three, Thomas Doe, president of Eastern Air Transport, Inc.; Groll Hunter, vice-president and general manager of Northwest Airways, Inc.; and Alfred Frank, president of the National Parks Airways, Inc., said they had been left in uncertainty as to what they had to do under the rebidding call.

They said that whether there would be any reorganizing at all would have to be decided by stockholders or boards of directors after clarification of the government's stipulations.

"It's up to the stockholders," said Doe.

Farley had stipulated that companies whose officers attended the widely publicized 1933 air mail conference must expect these men as part of the reorganization.

Doe and Frank were listed as being present at that meeting. Some officials had expressed loyalty toward Frank's company, saying it had received nothing at the meeting.

Two Killed in Gun Fight

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 29 (AP).—Two men were killed and at least six others were injured by an explosion of gas in the Lankin Valley mine, owned by the Lankin Valley Coal Company, fifty other men at work in the mine were rescued.

The explosion occurred at 1,000 feet below the surface, made their way out of the mine safely. Company officials announced an hour after the blast.

Mrs. Owens Found Dead in Her Bed

When Mrs. Catherine Campbell entered the bedroom of Mrs. Elizabeth E. Owens, who conducted a rooming house at 555 Broadway, it was to find Mrs. Owens dead in bed. Mrs. Campbell called Dr. Saul Ritchie, who made an examination and said that death was caused by coronary thrombosis. Mrs. Owens had not been in the best of health for some time. She had been a resident of Kingston for the past eight years and was about 50 years of age. Officers Bowser and Reardon were called to the house when the body was found.

Coroner W. Norman Conner was summoned and had the body removed to his funeral home on Park street. It is understood that Mrs. Owens has relatives in New Jersey and the coroner this afternoon was trying to get in touch with them.

Engineers Curb Phone Listings

Successful progress in a campaign to eliminate improper listings as "engineers" from telephone and classified directories was announced last night at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the New York State Society of Professional Engineers, by Dr. D. B. Steinman, chairman of the board. Out of 113 listings that have been challenged, 52 have already been withdrawn from the New York telephone directories and others are in process of correction. The campaign is being extended to other counties.

Under the State Education Law, as pointed out by the officers of the society, it is unlawful for any individual to hold himself out as an engineer or to use the designation engineer unless he holds the state license to practice professional engineering. High qualifications have been established for admission into the profession, including complete academic and professional education, followed by at least four years of successful experience as an engineering assistant, before admission to the licensing examinations. Men without this professional education and experience cannot secure the license, and their unauthorized appropriation of such designations as "Consulting Engineer," "Electrical Engineer," "Heating Engineer," and the like, misleads the public and injures the standing of the profession.

Making Bath

In making bath, the design is first sketched on the cloth with a pencil; then all the intricate portions which are to be protected from the first dye are carefully covered on both sides of the cloth with melted wax. This is done by hand, by means of a tiny spooned cup the size of a thimble. By drying, removing the wax, re-waxing and re-dyeing several times, the piece of batik is finally made. It seems simple enough, but weeks, or perhaps months, of patient labor go into its making. Some of the best cloth, worked in beautiful designs, is restricted to the use of royalty and the court dancers.

Kingston Choristers Plan for Concert

At their regular rehearsal on Tuesday evening at the Y. W. C. A., the Kingston Choristers completed plans for their spring concert which is scheduled to be held in the high school auditorium on Monday evening, April 20.

A number of special interest on their program will be "The Highwaymen," by Deems Taylor, a cantata for women's voices with harp solo. William Simmons of New York has been engaged to sing the solo role, and he will also give a group of numbers.

A change in the club rehearsal hour next week has been made owing to the community concert. The club will meet from 7 to 8:20 p. m. in order that those wishing to attend may be able to do so. All members are particularly urged to be present at all rehearsals between now and the concert date.

Following the rehearsal and business meeting on Tuesday, the members remained for a short get-acquainted party of which Mrs. Mortimer Downer was chairman. Games were enjoyed and refreshments served.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 29 (AP)—Financial markets maintained a steady position today and various securities and commodities appeared to have benefited from a mild revival of inflationary sentiment.

The currency expansion implications attached to the overriding of the Presidential veto of the independent offices appropriation bill by the senate apparently did not bring the buying rush that might have resulted under other circumstances. Trading was dull.

Some of the metal stocks and a few specialties were put up 1 to 2 points in quiet dealings. Grains, silver and rubber improved. Cotton rallied about 1/4 a cent. Sterling jumped 2 cents in terms of the dollar, probably in response to the veto news, but other foreign exchange were narrow. U. S. government bonds eased. Secondary corporation issues did better.

Shares of U. S. Smelting advanced more than 3, while Dome, American Smelting, McIntyre and Alaska Juneau gained 1 or more. There was relatively large turnover in International Nickel at an improvement of 1/2 point. Others, up a point or so, included Texas Pacific Land Trust, Kelvinton, Wilson Preferred and Armour Preferred A. The rails were moderately higher. Such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, American Can, National Distillers, Chrysler, General Motors and Goodyear just about held their own.

Many operators and most of the public were reported to have stepped aside because of the fact that the security exchanges will be closed tomorrow for the Good Friday holiday.

Lack of aggressiveness in leading stock groups, however, was attributed largely to pessimistic interpretation of the administration's exchange control bill. In some circles it was felt that if the measure goes through in its present form, the securities business may decline to extremely small proportions. There were few hopes that amendments satisfactory to the financial district would be approved by Congress.

Optimistic commentators pointed out that the technical condition of the market had improved considerably, that equities generally were inclined to be firm rather than reactionary in exceptionally dull sessions and that stocks, as a whole, seemed to be in fairly strong hands.

There was still talk of a possible step-up in the price of gold in the near future, but most banking quarters were not inclined to anticipate any change in the existing rate until and unless other influences fail to work.

NOVELTY FABRICS IN SUMMER FROCKS

Printed Net, Straw Cloth Are New Offerings.

This is going to be a season when materials speak for themselves. Among the more fanciful of the 1934 fabrics is printed net.

In prints, frills, flowers and conventional designs printed net is scheduled for a popular summer run. In addition to using it for such types of costume as we have been accustomed to, the new printed nets will also find themselves made into sports outfits and suits for street wear.

Straw cloth is another novelty—that is, it has all the earmarks of novelty with the more stable benefits of practicality. It consists of cellophane woven on artificial silk, and is to be used both for costumes and for hats. It is to be had in colors and in black and white, and is said to be near excessive heat, but delightful when near cool lights.

Composition wools make an interesting group in the new fabric department. They are a medley of widely differing strands and threads with an assortment of odd colors, off-shades of better known hues. And almost invariably there are gold or silver threads—sometimes colored metal strands—woven in with the wool.

EASY TO CROCHET

By EUGENE NICHOLAS

The vogue for hand-crocheted accessories has progressed by leaps and bounds. The dairy hat here pictured is crocheted of the finest cotton in lace stitch. The crown fits tightly, rising to a Tyrolean peak at the top, and in the same Alpine spirit a black and white feather is stuck jauntily over the right ear. The brim is soft and draped, a very flattering line for any face. This hat can be made quickly and easily and it is the perfect complement for the semi-formal sport clothes which every cruise wardrobe must include. A most attractive gantlet glove is also pictured. It has a flared cuff crocheted in a zig-zag design, using black cotton for contrast if the glove be worked of white cotton or using brown if the glove be ecru. The envelope purse is done in match crochet.

Rustling Petticoats Are Coming Back Into Style

Not many of us had the candor to admit our grief when taffeta petticoats passed into oblivion as well as spalls. But we're all ready to give a big smile in a sentimental sort of way to the return of this most swish-swishing of swish-swish fashions, and probably will go about indulging ourselves with an orange or red taffeta petticoat rather than buying the new slip we intended. Don't be terrified the first time you hear a crisp crackle under your best girl's soft wool frock. She is merely initiating her new royal blue taffeta petticoat, what fun!

STYLE NOTES

Ensembles reign supreme. Rows are placed adroitly at necklines. Monotone redingotes top print frocks. Many a short jacket suggests a blouse. Fashion turns the spotlight on flowers. A real "print season" is the forecast. Old fabric combinations are stressed, such as taffeta with linen. Fashion definitely sponsors costume jewelry.

Y. M. C. A. Seeks to Raise $15,000 Here

Campaign to Open on April 16—Last Year Association Work Here Was Crippled for Lack of Funds—Desire to Engage Physical Director to Have Charge of Physical Activities.

The local Y. M. C. A. is planning to stage a financial drive in Kingston in April to raise $15,000 to carry on the work of the association this year. Last year the association was crippled in its work by lack of funds. In the budget for this year has been included an item for engaging a full time physical director to have charge of the physical activities of the association.

The proposed campaign was announced today by Clarence S. Rowland, president of the board of directors of the local Y. and those who will take part in the campaign will be announced later.

Ernest LeFevre is chairman of the initial gift committee and will be assisted by C. S. Treadwell, J. A. Gutteridge, Clarence S. Rowland, W. T. Fuller, A. S. Staples, William B. Byrne and David Terry.

During the past year Secretary Schoonmaker has also been acting as physical director assisted by Mr. Fuller of the boys' department, but it is believed that better work can be done if a full time physical director is engaged who can devote his entire time to carrying on the physical activities of the association.

Running a close second to the "hen fruit" champion was Harold Coons. He ate 18. Next came Ferd Gilder, sleeve, local fruit dealer, a guest at the dinner, who gave Coons a hard run for second prize.

2 Arrested in France For Prince Murder

Paris, March 29 (AP)—Underworld trails into the haunts of the "Starivsky gang" led today to murder charges against two men suspected of slaying Judge Albert Prince, "the man who knew all" in the Starivsky scandal.

Gaetan L'Herbon De Lussats, a native of Monaco, who is called "Baron," and Paul Carbone Bonaventure, a Corsican, were locked up after an all night grilling by secret police.

A third man, Francois Paul Spirito, was held at Marseilles.

Two Argentines, whose names were not disclosed, also were sought. They were described as friends of Bonaventure, whose real name is believed to be Carboni and who, police said, boasted the title of "King of the Gangsters."

MATHIE AGAIN

"MATHIE... Mathie... just a minute," said Judith as if trying to recall the name. "Oh yes, now I remember, he was the gentleman who left town so hurriedly when the election scandal was being investigated... something about buying blocks of votes from itinerant oil field workers."

"Why... why..." spluttered Scathborne.

"You'll forgive me if I'm wrong, but it seems to me I heard something about a matter of five thousand dollars passing between Mathie and some gentleman with a name similar to yours, Lamphere, I believe, provided the money for the—"

"Mrs. Dale, I didn't come here to be insulted," snapped Scathborne. "There are nicer places, aren't there?" Judith said consolingly, "but suggest to Mr. Lamphere that next time he send someone not labeled with a cancelled check."

"Are you psychic?" demanded Justin Cunard pleasantly, in the silence which followed the slamming door.

"No," Judith laughed with the others, "but I have a friend on a newspaper, which is practically the same thing. She came to the door with me and recognized our departed guest. However, and now she spoke seriously, 'It means, gentlemen, that Lamphere will not hesitate to plant his men in our midst to say, or to cause dissension.'"

"He was more subtle," said one of the new members, "he tried to minimize your importance in such a gentle way we scarcely recognized his intentions."

The rest of the afternoon passed swiftly, and shortly before sundown, Judith drove to the airport where Slim Sanford awaited her. Judith, seeing the tall Texan, thought he seemed slimmer and browner than ever. Even his smile, which usually showed in such a brilliant flash, seemed strained.

"Hello small-Jude, ready to trust your heart 'n hand to me and my ship?"

"Any time, any place," Judith responded.

"If I thought you meant that," retorted Sanford, "I'd head west then south to a neat little spot near Oaxaca where there are no fortunes, platinum bignodes, nor heartaches."

"Did you mention Oaxaca or heaven?" queried Judith, breathlessly, puzzled by his manner.

"It would be both... hop in." He helped her into the tiny cabin, smiled his queer, tired smile and slid in to the pilot's seat.

The motor roared, spluttered, then to the rhythm of three motors taking their beat the ship taxied down the runway, nosed up and out.

JUDITH was on her way to Norman. She had no other thought save a sub-conscious enjoyment of the flight. As a child she had always had the highest, most dangerous swings in her various neighborhoods, and with her father had delighted to spin across some chasm in a cable car, suspended above rocky gorges by a weblike line.

Now her enjoyment was double for she was on her way to her husband. She would drive back with him. They would stop at the white farmhouse on the Houston highway for their dinner as they had on their honeymoon, and there would be old fashioned flowers, stalks and cinnamon pinks along the paths, and fireflies would hold their tiny lanterns against the screened windows. Only of course, it was too early for cinnamon pinks and hollyhocks.

Slim Sanford looked back, saw the smile on her face and switched off the motor so they seemed to float in the sunset. "Small Jude," he said, "I'm sore-tempted."

She wrinkled her nose at him and pointed below. Galveston lay there. The long island, thick at its eastern end and thin at the western, looked like an exclamation point.

He nodded and a few moments later they had come to a smooth landing. "I'll wait here until ten o'clock, in case you want to go back," he said, as he helped her into a cab. "Meet me here or telephone."

"Well... well all right," Judith's positive she wouldn't need him, she looked as wistful as a tall, boned man could look.

The motor roared, spluttered, then to the rhythm of three motors taking their beat the ship taxied down the runway, nosed up and out.

JUDITH was on her way to Norman. She had no other thought save a sub-conscious enjoyment of the flight. As a child she had always had the highest, most dangerous swings in her various neighborhoods, and with her father had delighted to spin across some chasm in a cable car, suspended above rocky gorges by a weblike line.

Now her enjoyment was double for she was on her way to her husband. She would drive back with him. They would stop at the white farmhouse on the Houston highway for their dinner as they had on their honeymoon, and there would be old fashioned flowers, stalks and cinnamon pinks along the paths, and fireflies would hold their tiny lanterns against the screened windows. Only of course, it was too early for cinnamon pinks and hollyhocks.

Slim Sanford looked back, saw the smile on her face and switched off the motor so they seemed to float in the sunset. "Small Jude," he said, "I'm sore-tempted."

She wrinkled her nose at him and pointed below. Galveston lay there. The long island, thick at its eastern end and thin at the western, looked like an exclamation point.

He nodded and a few moments later they had come to a smooth landing. "I'll wait here until ten o'clock, in case you want to go back," he said, as he helped her into a cab. "Meet me here or telephone."

"Well... well all right," Judith's positive she wouldn't need him, she looked as wistful as a tall, boned man could look.

First Electric Street Lights In Kingston Installed In 1888

That Was the Year Steve Brodie Leaped From Poughkeepsie Bridge and Prof. Oldrier Astonished the Natives by Walking on Water—John Newkirk Was Mayor in 1888—Interesting Sidelights on Early History of City.

The year that saw the city's first electric street lights installed was the year that Steve Brodie leaped from the Poughkeepsie bridge on a wager, winning $500 and a gold medal, and the same month that Prof. C. W. Oldrier of Boston, astonished the natives by walking on the waters of the Hudson river in his water shoes to win a wager of $500, which seemed to be a popular amount to wager in the late '80s. It was on November 15, 1888, the common council of Kingston granted the franchise for lighting the streets with electricity to the Kingston Electric Light, Heat and Power Company, composed largely of local men.

The new electric company was organized with George B. Morse of Hyde Park, Mass., and Goodrich B. Merrill, William Hutton, Thomas H. Tremper and Reuben Barnard of Kingston. The amount of the capital stock was $50,000.

Talked Of In 1885.

A glance through the old minute book of the common council in the early '80s shows that on December 18, 1885, the Kingston & Rondout Electric Light Company was granted permission to erect poles upon the streets for their wires.

That several concerns sought to obtain the contract to furnish electric lighting in the city is shown by the records for on April 30, 1886, the Schuyler Light Company asked the aldermen to appoint a committee to meet with them to talk over the lighting by electricity, and on May 21 of that year the company offered to light the city streets for $125 per year for each light installed.

Many Sought Contract.

Just shortly after the Fourth of July of that year the American Electric Company sought permission to light the streets, and on July 28 the Schuyler Company made an offer to furnish 2,000 candlepower lights at $90 each per year.

Then on August 27, 1886, Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Company sought permission to erect light poles here, and on September 3 of that year the Schuyler Company agreed to furnish lights at 25 percent less than the price of the Westinghouse concern.

Again In 1887.

Again in 1887 street lighting by electricity was a live issue in the city and on May 27, 1887 the common council granted a petition asking that a contract be made with the Schuyler Company for lighting an electric light which the company had installed near the railroad crossing on Union avenue, now Broadway.

Mayor Newkirk's Plan.

Mayor John Newkirk in a communication to the common council recommended the city own its own electric plant which could be built at a cost of about $60,000, he said, and operated at a yearly cost of $14,000.

Street Lights In 1888.

It was on November 16, 1888, however, that the city fathers granted the contract for lighting the streets with electricity to the Kingston Electric Light, Heat and Power Company.

The electric street lights replaced the gas lights which had replaced the oil lamps of earlier generations.

Changes Since Then.

Those first crude electric street lamps have been succeeded by the present modern system of street lighting.

As the years passed after the installation of the first electric street lights the Kingston Gas & Electric Company came into existence, and some years ago was taken over by the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation.

"How's She Cutting?"

But to get back to that historic year of the first electric street lights the latest popular slang phrase of that year was "How's she cutting?" A

STATE INCOME TAX

— BY —
MARK GRAVER, Commissioner.

If you are an employer the law requires that you file information returns showing payments to employees receiving salaries large enough to be subject to the tax.

This requirement is intended to furnish the Tax Commission with available information on the potential taxpayers. It affects individuals, employers as well as corporations, and partnerships. Any single employee receiving $1,000 or more, or married employee living with husband or wife receiving $2,500 or more, must be listed on this return.

It is thus apparent that a lawyer for example, who employs a private secretary must report to the Department of Taxation the salary which he pays her. A private institution which employs nurses or attendants who receive compensation must also file information with the Commission providing that the amount paid plus a fair valuation of the maintenance exceeds $1,000 or $2,500 or more as the case may be.

Another requirement which the Income Tax Bureau is laboring to make entirely effective, demands that anyone who employs a non-resident shall collect from the employee the tax due on his salary, wage, commission or bonus, providing the payments are performed within the State. Employers should also secure from their employees certificates on our Bureau Form 101 in which the employee claims New York State as their residence. In the eyes of the law any employee who fails to file such a claim with his employer is regarded as a non-resident and is subject to the withholding of the tax by his employer.

The reports of employers as to non-resident employees must be filed with the Income Tax Bureau before April 15. The State holds the employer liable for failure to perform this duty. The amount of compensation paid to each worker and the amount of tax withheld should be transmitted with the return. This action on the part of the employer does not relieve the non-resident employee from filing his own personal return in the usual manner. He is also required to report any additional income from other sources. An employer is not permitted to allow any deductions which his non-resident employees may claim. Such deductions may be claimed by the employee in a personal return to the Bureau. When these are approved if it becomes apparent that the amount deducted by the employer exceeds the tax which is actually due, the difference will be quickly refunded.

Individuals, partnerships or corporations must also file with the Department information returns listing payment to individuals of interest on mortgages, notes or registered bonds, from real property if in the amount of $1,000 or more.

Where a real estate agent acts as a collector, tenants need not file returns citing this information. The agent is required to report payment of such rents to the owner when the aggregate amount for the taxable year is sufficient to require that action.

If you fall into the classes enumerated above it is advisable for you to comply with the law to the nth degree. Severe penalties are provided for those who fail to make information returns. Moreover, the law provides that the Tax Department may examine the books and records of all individuals, partnerships, corporations and associations, in order to obtain information necessary to check the tax of any individual. Forms utilized in making information returns as well as those for withholding agents may be obtained at any of the offices of the Department of Taxation and Finance.

Journalism in 34 countries is represented in an exhibit prepared by Prof. J. W. Riddings of Texas Christian University, Fort Worth.

they were supplanted by the auto bus lines which provided quicker transportation.

What Next?

First the crude oil lamps, later the gas lamps and today the electric light lamps. What will be the means of illumination fifty years hence?

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

THE opinion is gaining ground in Washington that the government may have gone too far in permitting practices which ordinarily would be punishable under the anti-trust laws. A decided change of front is not impossible.

President Roosevelt, himself, is concerned about charges of price-fixing, unfair competition, and other monopolistic policies which are said to be in operation in some industries under the protective clauses of the new codes.

Whether more revision of the codes will accomplish what Mr. Roosevelt wants to do is problematical. Senator Borah had a most interested and respectful hearing when he told the senate recently that the national recovery act should be amended, and the provisions suspending the anti-trust laws repealed.

The theory at first was that business was in such dire straits it would think patriotically of national recovery, as a whole if given a larger measure of self-government, and would take no unfair advantages. But with respect to several industries, Washington is beginning to be less confident of that.

Trade Commission Speaks.

THE Federal Trade Commission, which up to now has been more or less the ugly duckling of this commission era, is largely responsible for keeping the question always in sight.

For some 30 years before NRA and AAA and all their works were thought of, the trade commission had been negotiating codes of fair competition and uncovering anti-trust law violations. Out of its vast experience it never seemed quite so fearful of big business as some other branches of the government.

THE commission snarled in the latest monopoly wars suspended, and the new and much-advertised codes were turned over to NRA and AAA. It bided its time, for the corridors of its ramshackle old quarters brimmed with speculation about what was going on in the shiny new offices of the freshly empowered code agencies a few blocks away.

Now the commission has begun to speak openly. In two days it took two significant steps. It directly attacked permissive clauses of the NRA's code, and declared with respect to a suit case from Illinois that AAA was permitting practices which ordinarily would be adjudged in restraint of trade.

Same Old Questions.

THE whole sequence of events has riveted major attention on the trust question for the first time in many years.

Mr. Roosevelt faces the same problem which has worried more than one of his predecessors: whether it is better to give business more rein, so that it can accomplish real economic and betterment by concerted action, or to forbid that concerted action because of the abuses to which it may be put.

Some presidents have decided one way, some the other; and it is a testimony to the complexity of the problem that whichever way the question was answered in the past, trouble ensued. Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt can find the happy medium.

WITH both the trusts and the 1934 back in the front row of political controversy, just as they were in the early years of the century, a good deal of force is being thrown from these off-beat angles to the new day in which we are supposed to be living.

There is an old French proverb which says: "The more things change, the more they are the same."

THE BEAUTY PLEDGE.

Physicians have long had their "oath of Hippocrates." A fine oath it is, too, ennobling to any doctor who lives up to it. Now the beauticians have one somewhat like it. Thirty thousand beauty culturists assembling in New York the other day, in an atmosphere of perfumes, permanents, facials, finger-nail lectures, personality tests and electric hair dryers, had this pledge sprung on them: "I, having served my apprenticeship to Venus, the Goddess of Beauty, swear jointly by Venus and Apollo, the physician, to serve the women of the world with the realization that to them beauty exceeds in importance even health. I swear never to forsake my calling, and to serve in sickness and in health, with or without recompense, that which I believe to be the reason for our being, to be beautiful."

It is a grand gesture if nothing more. Patrons, actual or prospective, will be much interested in that gentle

Newburgh Selected For Regional Market

Selection Made Wednesday by the Regional Market Authority—Mayor Heston Wins Committee Asking Kingston Be Selected For a Primary or Subsidiary Market Site.

The Lower Hudson Regional Market will be located in Newburgh. That fact was made public at a meeting of the Market Authority held in Poughkeepsie on Wednesday afternoon. A 14-acre site on Robinson street, a short distance from the concrete bridge on the road to West Point was chosen as the location of the market.

Mayor Heston, chairman of the Regional Market Authority of the Lower Hudson, requested that Kingston be selected as the site for a primary or subsidiary market to be operated in conjunction with the main market to be located in Newburgh.

The Regional Market Authority will expend about $70,000 in erecting six buildings to be used for the regional market in Newburgh, and work of construction will be started as soon as the plans are approved by the Interior Department and will be carried out as a Public Works project.

Makes 80,000 Exposures a Second

DEVELOPED by a German electrical company, the camera shown above is capable of 80,000 exposures a second. Operations of the shortest duration, such as the oscillation of springs, valve motion of combustion engines, light processes of fuses and switches, and other movements which the human eye is incapable of seeing, can be clearly photographed. The reel runs with such rapidity that it is impossible to wind the exposed film which, therefore, is caught in a black bag attached to the camera and wound after developing.

NORMAL TWIN LORDS OVER "SUPER-BABY"

Child Experts Embarrassed by Blow to Theories.

New York.—The most carefully trained baby in the world, selected by science in its experiment to produce the super-child, can't even claim to be "top" in his own home—because his twin brother is a smarter promoter!

The scientifically raised baby to Johnny Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. Florence Woods of Manhattan. He was born April 18, 1932, with his twin, Jimmy.

Dr. Myrtle V. McGraw of the Neurological Institute's Normal Child Development clinic took Johnny and, with a corps of the foremost scientists and psychologists of Columbia university to help her, promised:

"We will show how this baby will be superior to his brother, or to any other child, by giving him training according to the latest scientific precepts. We will let the other twin alone, to grow up as most babies grow up. And, when we finish our experiment, Johnny will be a super-child, and Jimmy just an ordinary infant."

The world waited for the outcome of the unique experiment, and had to admit for a long time that science seemed to be right. Johnny "outdistanced" by scientific means, was amazingly precocious in his development.

Learns Quickly.

At seven months, this wonder boy could swim. At one year, he was able to climb 6-foot pedestals. He learned to skate almost as soon. Auditoriums full of psychologists watched his exploits, spell-bound when he was put on exhibited.

Poor little Jimmy, his twin! He couldn't swim. He couldn't skate. He yelled when they put him on high platforms and wanted him to try to crawl down, as his gifted brother could. Jimmy is underdeveloped in comparison with his brother, whose systematic exercise under the direction of the scientists has given him a firm infant body and corded muscles.

Science was, indeed, verified! Johnny was the superman in the making! And Jimmy was just a depressingly normal child, with a nice smile and a taking way about him, but just another baby, all the same.

That's the way it looked, at least until certain observant folks began to notice that nature, in her slow way, might have figured out something to compensate "backward" Jimmy that would make him boss over his talented twin.

For Jimmy, although he can't do a tenth of the things that Johnny can, is a very shrewd youngster in his untrained way, and he has realized that he can turn all of Johnny's physical aptitudes to his own ends. He is perfectly willing to let Johnny work for him!

Experts Embarrassed.

Child training experts are considerably embarrassed over the turn their experiment has taken; for Jimmy seems to have all the qualifications of the high-powered executive, and Johnny all the ability of the skilled subordinate.

"Jimmy bosses Johnny all over the place," said the mother of the twins, when an interviewer inspected the babies in their home at One Hundred and Forty-fifth street and Amsterdam avenue. "He can get just about what he wants from Johnny, and he has learned that his orders go over best when he gives them with a smile and a little instinctively shrewd coaxing."

Dr. John Dewey, Columbia's famous philosopher, and Dr. John Stewart Patton, the great neurologist, say that Johnny has proved to their satisfaction the exceptional benefits possible under proper care and feeding of the young. But the neighbors are predicting that Jimmy will be the boss when both grow up, just as he is now.

Mother nature, they insist, knows how to raise successful sons.

Turkish Lexicographers in Controversy Over X

Angora, Turkey.—Turkish lexicographers are engaged in a wordy war over the use of the letter X.

Some would like to add X to the 29 letters in the Turkish alphabet. The advocates of its use assert that without the letter it is impossible to translate such foreign names as Xerxes, Xenophon and Rex accurately. They point out the X is used by Turks in Algebra, so why not in the language? The "X-ers" are advocates of "eternal orthography" in the spelling of foreign names and words. They assert that Xerxes would turn over in his grave if he were called Kaerksen, and that Pax written Paix might lead to warfare.

But the opponents of X retort that the Turkish alphabet is intended for Turks and not for Turz. They insist on continuing to spell foreign names phonetically. Heriot is spelled "Her-ya," and football "futbol."

Invents New Auto Fuel, Cost Tenth of Gasoline

Berlin.—Reduction in the cost of automobile fuel to one-tenth the price of gasoline by a new chemical process was claimed in an official government communication.

The government, which supervised experiments with a gas generated from charcoal, pronounced the process successful and commercially workable. The gas is generated by chemical reaction when steam is forced into one's ing charcoal.

Protected With Pat.

Noah's Ark is described as "pitted within and without" to guard it against the floods. According to Pliny, the early Greeks, too, preserved their ships with a preparation of boiled wax, after which "neither the sea nor the wind nor the sun can destroy the wood thus protected."

Presiding the awarding of the varsity letters, Betty Timney, vice president of the Athletic Association, awarded basketball emblems to the girls' class basketball champions, who were members of the Senior team captained by Edna Partian. Following the awarding of the letters by Mr. Mable, Superintendent B. C. Van Ingen, representing the DUSO League, presented the DUSO certificate and team picture to John Zech, captain of the team, and Wilson Timney, manager of the team.

MONTANA SITE OF GARDEN OF EDEN?

Expert Plans Specialized Hunt to Prove Theory.

Red Lodge, Mont.—Eastern Montana, scene of many fossil finds, may have been the "Garden of Eden," is the belief of Dr. J. C. S. Segfried, Montana paleontologist.

Spurred by this belief, Doctor Segfried hopes to launch at Bearfoot Butte one of the greatest and most specialized "man hunts" ever carried on within Montana's borders.

The search would be for remains of the prehistoric man who, Doctor Segfried long has believed, once inhabited this area.

The Red Lodge scientist says he plans to bring into the Red Lodge district specialists in the separate fields of science dealing with the history of man.

If present plans are carried out, anthropologists, paleontologists, geologists, and other representatives of science would be brought here to carry on an intensive study and research in the "Bearfoot shales" near here which have produced some of the most interesting fossil finds in recent years.

A lone believer for years that Montana might hold the secret of man's mysterious beginning and establish herself as the site of the long sought for Garden of Eden, Doctor Segfried's hopes were bolstered here last summer when members of the International Geological congress visited this region.

This group was composed of internationally known scientists and included Sir Arthur Smith Woodward, world famous anthropologist and co-discoverer of the Pitdown man near Sussex, England.

Sir Arthur was much impressed with the possibilities of this region and stated that the ancient river terraces which abound here offered a promising field for the finding of a prehistoric man. The British scientist urged that a systematic search be conducted.

Further encouraging statements were made by Dr. W. T. Thom, Jr., Princeton university scientist and leader of the Scott fund geological expedition, which has been sent to this region for the past four summers by the eastern university.

Doctor Segfried has made several trips East recently to try to interest scientists and philanthropists in sponsoring an expedition for researching in the area adjacent to Red Lodge.

Crumpled Scrap of Paper

Worth $30,000 to Woman

Washington.—A crumpled scrap of paper found under a mattress in her boarding house, meant a fortune of nearly $30,000 to Miss Minnie Keyes as the District of Columbia Supreme court upheld the paper as being the last will and testament of a former boarder.

It all began when Leonard A. Hamilton became a boarder in the Keyes' home nearly 30 years ago. A quiet, non-communicative man, little was known of his affairs, but he was given a good home and there he remained until he died March 13, 1933.

On March 12 he was told by his physician he had but 24 hours to live. On that day he took a wrinkled telegraph blank and on it wrote the briefest will ever placed on the files of District Supreme court. It read:

"Minnie Keyes,
"You have been good to me. All is yours."

Two friends, who had come to visit the dying man, signed the will as witnesses.

Miss Keyes was informed of the will and shortly after found the crumpled paper under the mattress wound around a pencil stub with a rubber band. The writing hardly was legible and apparently meaningless. A friend stopped Miss Keyes as she was about to crumple the paper and throw it away.

The will was contested by Nettie Lee Gaines of Culpepper, Va., niece of the man, but before evidence was offered lawyers for the niece consented to a decree upholding its validity.

The will left Miss Keyes an estate of $30,000, the principal part of which consists of real estate.

Will Get $250,000

Monteagle Valley, Ont.—Sgt. William Mintz, who carried a wounded Scottish officer from a shell hole in France to a dressing station, saving the officer's life, will sail for Scotland next summer to receive a reward of $250,000.

The officer whom Mintz saved and whose name he refuses to divulge, "until after I get the money," was said to have invited Mintz to visit him in Scotland on many occasions while he was on leave and for a considerable time after the war.

News of the reward which Mintz will receive reached the sergeant a few weeks ago, and since that time he has been in constant communication with the Scottish officer for further details. He refused to make known in what form his reward would come.

Kingston: "Dark Hazard." W. R. Burnett, creator of "Little Caesar," comes through with another winner in this story of a gambler, played to perfection by Edward G. Robinson. As the carefree, reckless gambler, Mr. Robinson is in his element, and the story concerns his love for a fleet greyhound dog called "Dark Hazard." Robinson marries a girl who tries to reform him, but fails in her noble objective. She leaves him, taking most of his money along with her, and Robinson returns to his first love, the racing dog. Well played and exciting, this talkie breathes the atmosphere of the race track. Genevieve Tobin and Glenda Farrell are also in the cast.

Orpheum: "Hearts of Humanity." "Ridin' Gents." Two features are offered on the Orpheum screen, the first a human and tragic story of poor people and their problems, Jean Hersholt and Jackie Searle head the cast. The second talkie offers Bud and Ben in a western, and gun fighting as an added attraction to a rather worn plot.

Broadway: "Son of Kong" and "The Man Who Dared." Further adventures on Skull Island, where King Kong once roamed, takes place in this first offering. An expedition returns to the island, and meets the son of Kong, a giant ape of unbelievable proportions. Adventure runs high during the course of the film and Robert Armstrong and Helen Beck walk with death close at their heels most of the time they are exploring the island for treasure. "The Man Who Dared" is a seven biographical picture of the late Anton Cermak, and it is one of the best pictures of this type to come to the screen. It starts out while he is an immigrant boy in the coal mines, and carries him through his triumphs and troubles until his tragic end at the hand of an assassin, while he is accompanying President-elect Roosevelt in Miami. Chicago politics and the lives of public men are terribly drawn. The cast includes: Preston Foster, Jay Ward, Zola Johnson, and Leon Wayoff.

Tomorrow

Kingston: Same. Orpheum: "The Worst Woman in Paris." The old, old story of the woman whose reputation for being bad is much worse than she really is. In fact, although the lady in this play is supposed to be as bad as they come, according to drawing room gossip, she is in reality a lovable and self-sacrificing creature of noble purposes. This play is the story of those sacrifices, although she starts out with the reputation of being the very worst woman in the whole of Paris. Adolphe Menjou, Benita Hume, Helen Chandler and Harvey Stephens are in the cast.

Broadway: "Four Acts of Vaudeville" and "Search for Beauty." The stage show offers four new acts of vaudeville that includes Hap Hazard and Marie, Dorothy and the King Brothers, Rosemary and Frazer, others, Buster Crabbe, Ida Lupino, James Gleason, Robert Armstrong, Toby Wing, Roscoe Karns and 28 international beauties picked for the show are to be seen in "Search for Beauty." The story is an effort to show how the health and beauty magazines in this country are worked up as a racket. There is some good comedy and capable acting in this out while he is an immigrant boy in the coal mines, and carries him through his triumphs and troubles until his tragic end at the hand of an assassin, while he is accompanying President-elect Roosevelt in Miami. Chicago politics and the lives of public men are terribly drawn. The cast includes: Preston Foster, Jay Ward, Zola Johnson, and Leon Wayoff.

On 12/12/68, the following information was received from the Bureau of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Washington, D.C.:

But it was the "bored" expression that attracted attention. The girl in the crowd who had been sitting next to me had come out of the "bored" zone and was looking at me. She had a big smile on her face and was looking at me. She had a big smile on her face and was looking at me. She had a big smile on her face and was looking at me.

The methods of using the 200 inch machine are held studies into a future astronomy which substitutes analyses of electrical, heat and magnetic energies for vision and thereby sees things further hidden from eyes in the thickness of the earth's atmosphere.

The "Youth" Of Venus.

Take the "youth" of Venus, and idea suggested by some astronomers which puts her back, compared with the earth, into a condition that may have existed here hundreds of millions of years ago. Telescopes already have identified the presence of large amounts of carbon dioxide high above the clouds which cover Venues.

But almost no oxygen at all. In that contrast arises the youth hypothesis. For plants consume carbon dioxide and convert it into oxygen. No one knows surely whether this happened on earth long ago, but it has been suggested.

Also that on Venus exists the carbon dioxide for a lush plant growth which may some day convert that gas into much larger proportions of oxygen. More plant food and more oxygen would be imagined to favor the start of life as it exists on earth.

Planet May Be "Sick."

But theoretically it is also possible that the oxygen originally present in Venus' atmosphere was absorbed by her rocks. So that now she isn't really youthful compared with earth. But just sick.

The 200-inch mirror telescope will greatly extend the tenuous information about Venus' atmosphere.

Mars' apparent old age is similar. Its redness is not the blood which gave it the name of the mythical

BRINGING THE SKY NEARER

Here is a dramatic scene during the pouring of the 200-inch mirror with which science hopes to solve some of the enigmas of outer space. When it, the mass of stars which form the white glow of light at the center of the famous nebula in Canes Venatici (above) will be studied and an attempt made to uncover such secrets as the age of the planet Venus and the question of life on Mars.

Probing Martian Secrets.

The great patches about Mars' middle section, green-gray in spring, yellowish in fall, which have been taken for vegetation, will yield more of their light rays to the 200-inch mirror. And so come closer to tell ing the truth about themselves. Likewise the fine lines on Mars—the "cauals." which some astronomers have considered artificial, and so the works of intelligent beings.

The planet Jupiter may be liquid rather than solid. Vision cannot settle that, but the analysis of Jupiter's radiation in the instruments of the new 200-inch mirror telescope should go far toward clearing the mystery.

It will pay you to dress up your car with a new set of Goodyears for Easter

● Right now is perhaps the ideal time to discard your shabby old tires for good-looking stout-gripping new Goodyears.

Spring is here with its promise of slippery roads and greater danger for smooth thin treads, while Goodyear prices are still at Winter's low levels.

These are two good reasons for buying now but here's a third: New tires average 30% more mileage if started off new on our cooler Spring roads instead of hot Summer highways. The weather makes the difference—"cool-cures" the rubber, toughens it for extra life. A long-known fact!

You get all these advantages when you dress up your car with new Goodyears for Easter.

Come see our complete Spring stock of the tires the public believes best in value and thus buys the most. We'll suggest the right Goodyear for your driving and show you why it's your best buy at the price.

Pointers on Poise

This is a graceful way to sit while talking.
This is the seventh of a series of 12 daily articles telling how poise can be acquired.

VII. Sitting And Talking

By LAURA TOWNSEND DAVIES.

If you are sitting and talking with a friend, you naturally will turn slightly toward that person. It is not necessary to place yourself in an awkward position. You can be comfortable, polite and correct.

Place a chair sideways to a mirror so that you sit with your right side parallel with it. Place the left foot flat on the floor, in line with the center of your body. Draw the right foot back to the left foot, and show the right limb to relax. Your entire right side is now relaxed.

Now turn your head and shoulders to the mirror, as though to talk to a person on your right. You will see how easy and right this position looks. If the chair has arms, rest your left arm on the chair arm.

By way of contrast, put your right foot forward, relax the left, and then turn toward the mirror. The picture will be wrong. You will feel and look awkward.

Next—Balance In Sitting.

LIVE BUSINESS MEN ADVERTISE IN THE FREEMAN

If Solomon were alive today...this is what you'd hear him say!

"So you want to know what motor car to buy? Well, this is my best advice:
"First, be sure it is a General Motors car. General Motors, remember, is the foremost automotive organization in the world—with the greatest experience and the finest facilities for building superior automobiles.
"Second, be sure it is an eight-cylinder car. The trend today is unquestionably toward the Eight because of its greater smoothness and finer performance.
"Third, be sure it is a Straight Eight. The Straight Eight engine, you know, has been developed to a state of highest perfection for use in cars of the more popular type.
"Fourth, be sure it is not too expensive. Nowadays you can get good cars for comparatively little money.
"Fifth, be sure it has a Fisher body, for in no other can you get the quality for which bodies by Fisher have long been famous.
"Sixth, and most important of all, be sure it is a car you can be proud of. No car is a bargain unless you can be happy with it.
"Now, if you have studied cars, you will know that there is only one car on the market that meets my description—the Pontiac Straight Eight!
"Pontiac is practically no more expensive to buy and no more expensive to operate than cars in the very lowest price field.
"Pontiac lifts you out of the mass group and into the class group at almost no additional cost.
"Yes, Pontiac is the car I think the average American family should buy!"
Why not come in and see the new Pontiac Straight Eight—get behind the wheel and put it through its paces?

Grouse, Prairie Chicken Can Grow Own Snowshoes

Perhaps the best known of all the grouse is the ruffed grouse or "partridge." In the summer, feet are bare, but toward winter, horny projections grow out at the sides of the toes, which convert the feet into snowshoes, making it easier to walk over the surface of the snow. This difference may be observed by the wider tracks that are left.

Not only the ruffed grouse, but also the prairie chicken grows snowshoes in the winter. The prairie chickens develop "snowshoes" similar to the ruffed grouse, but the feathers on the prairie chicken's legs grow thicker as well as the scales on the toes.

Sharp-tailed grouse and spruce grouse also have the characteristic of growing the "snowshoes," while the willow ptarmigan grows white feathers way to the tips of its toes.

It is the ability to bud that enables the entire grouse tribe to survive the severe winters. Birch, poplar, apple, and other trees yield their buds when the thick snows hide the beech mast, acorns, wintergreen and cranberries and even the green leaves of ferns. Were it not for the ability to bud, the grouse family would soon either have to move southward or starve.

Although the grouse usually rests in evergreen trees, especially in swamps, when the weather becomes really severe, it has a habit of protecting itself against the cold by diving into snowdrifts.—Detroit Free Press.

Don't Swallow, Bite Your Wine, Is Advice

Dr. Lorenz, Famous Viennese Surgeon, Says Swallowing Wine Is Bad Manners—Calls Back Herr Mard Liquor.

New York, March 29 (AP).—Dr. Adolph Lorenz, the famous Viennese surgeon, called for home today after picking a few ashes into the American wine drinker's goblet.

"You must learn," he said, "not to swallow your wine. Swallowing is bad manners."

"I don't getcha, Doc," someone interjected.

The surgeon continued: "The proper way to take wine is to bite it."

"You mean," said the same interjector, "to let it freeze in chunks, and then bite it?"

The doctor indicated he meant no such thing.

"In Vienna we call it wine bite," he continued. "Wine must be bitten and not swallowed. You Americans must learn to appreciate the difference between the tongue and the palate."

Dr. Lorenz did not indicate specifically just how the wine, once bitten, was to continue on its journey down the gullet without swallowing. The impression he gave was that when one has become a proficient biter, the wine proceeds automatically to its destination.

He spoke very highly of California wines.

"They are very good," he said. "Not as good as European wines, but very good. They are young, and they will be much better when they get older."

He was not so kind to American beer. He said it was "drinkable, but getting better."

He said he had not tried the back beer, as he does not touch "hard liquor," which was the category into which he put back.

The doctor expressed sorrow over the American habit of imbibing cocktails. He said wines would be much better.

ENTERTAINED PATIENTS AT TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL

The patients of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital were entertained Tuesday, March 27, by a group from the Young Married Women's Club, and Miss Muriel Obernau, violinist.

The Young Married Women's Club presented a one-act play, "How The Story Grew," by O. W. Gleason. The cast was composed of:

Mrs. Brown . . . Mrs. S. M. Taylor
Mrs. Green . . . Mrs. Thomas Reynolds
Mrs. Beau . . . Mrs. Clarence Dumm
Mrs. Rice . . . Mrs. Amos MacCreary
Mrs. Doolittle . . . Mrs. Burton Haver
Mrs. Snow . . . Mrs. Le Van Haver
Mrs. Taylor . . . Mrs. William Travis
Mrs. White . . . Mrs. Ray Kraft

The play, directed by Mrs. Joseph McNeill, dealt with the gossip of a small community—how the story of new neighbors moving in grew into a tale of kidnapping and murder, via the mouth to mouth gossip of the various women. The costumes, old fashioned, were uproariously amusing.

Miss Obernau walked through the corridors playing her violin and singing "Gypsy Fiddles."

Samuel Insull to Sail On to Rumania Today

Agent At Istanbul For Chartered Freighter, Malotis, Said He Saw Insull, Who Seemed Queerly And Emotionally Troubled.

By PRISCILLA RING

Istanbul, Turkey, March 29 (AP).—Samuel Insull, whose mystery ship, the Malotis, put in here for provisions early today, will sail this afternoon for Rumania. It was reported from apparently authentic sources.

The decision to depart for Rumania, it was said, followed wireless instructions from Athens delivered to the 74-year-old fugitive this morning.

Insull, asleep when his dinky chartered vessel nosed around the Golden Horn at 6:30 a. m. today, remained aboard the ship in the face of strict police surveillance.

The Malotis within five hours completed the work of taking aboard water and foodstuffs. The captain said on arrival, that the boat was bound for Rumania.

Authorities of that country last night repeated warnings that Insull would be arrested if he landed there.

T. Chelabides, agent here for the Malotis, was asked on board and said he saw Insull lying down in his cabin. His health seemed pretty good," the agent continued, "but the old man quaverously complained of his difficulties and emotions on his trip."

The Malotis, in the 11 days it has cruised the Mediterranean and Aegean seas since leaving Piraeus, Greece, went as far as Port Said but found it impossible to pass through the Suez Canal, it was learned.

She then cruised around before coming here.

One man's word was the sole authority for the statement that Insull was aboard the Malotis.

But the Greek ship's agent, Stavro Tchelabides declared unhesitatingly: "I went; I saw."

The Turkish officials who boarded the Malotis evaded all queries as to whom they had seen here. Unlike in Greece, where most officials are willing to talk freely on any occasion, the officials in Turkey under the Kemalist regime will not utter a word.

The harbor police saw to it that all efforts to board the vessel and discover for one's self whether Insull was really a passenger of the Malotis met with failure.

I chartered a motor launch and rushed out to the Malotis as she lay at anchor. But after we had approached close enough to the steamer to get a good look, the police aboard the Malotis warned us off with shouts and gestures.

The craft itself was weather-beaten, and its deck was dingy. It did not look like the vessel for a dramatic odyssey.

I learned that Insull slept late after his arrival but I could not find out whether he came on deck for a view of the city or to the palace whose gray walls, towering on the European shore of Turkey, enshroud the mysteries of the Sultan's tyrannies and the intrigues of the imperial harem.

No other newspapermen fared better than I.

The Turkish government apparently

It does not want the same Insull mentioned in connection with Turkey as a transit voyage. Under strict orders from Ankara, the Turkish officials refused as much as to mention the boat.

Like the Weather "Money," said H. H. the mure of Chinatown, "is like the weather, which brings either comfort or distress. All we really know about it is that it is inevitable."

800 Fishermen Die In Chinese Typhoon

Shanghai, March 29 (AP).—A typhoon which struck off the coast of Kwangtung, southernmost sea coast province of China, brought death to 800 fishermen.

Three hundred fishing junks sank after a terrible pounding from the elements, said Chinese reports from the south.

A number of survivors were reported to have been saved by a Chinese customs cruiser.

The latest report said the typhoon struck in the vicinity of Waigang Monday night and caught the fishing fleet by surprise. Only a few score of the fishermen, who succeeded in clinging to wreckage of the junks and sampans, were rescued.

A Game for Two

By JOHN LESTER

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate, 1934

FLORENCE BELLONS saw trouble ahead. She slowed the pace of her motor as she approached the car beside the road and stopped when a tall figure planted itself squarely in front of her.

"Now, what in the world does he want with me?" she asked herself. "I can't help him and I won't give him a ride—even if he is good looking."

The young man came to the side of her car, and she saw in his dark eyes a look of determination.

"My car has gone blooey, and I wonder if you will give me a lift? I'm headed for the home of Mr. Bellows."

She looked at him sharply. She knew that her father had been trying to avoid process servers from the city for a week. Was this handsome, tawny chap one of that annoying tribe?

"But—"

"I am Vincent Douglas from the office of Watson & Watson," he explained.

"No, I don't think I will," she answered coolly. "Besides, I am on my way to town."

"I am sorry, but I am on my way to the Bellows country house; so, if you will please move over one seat, I'll—"

"Well, what do you propose to do?" she demanded, amazed.

"To drive you to the Bellows place, then drive you to town," he answered serenely. "Please."

"I won't," she replied briefly. She plunged her foot on the foot throttle, but he had taken out the ignition key. The car was dead.

He asked her to move; on her refusal, he lifted her bodily from the seat into the next. Sudden wrath was softened by the new sensation of a man's strong arms raising her as they would a child; and her mixed emotions left her undecided. Before she rallied, they were on their way.

He smiled down to her. "I am sorry, and I apologize, but you see I'm out to do what a dozen men haven't done."

"I see—and I ought to be downright angry with you, but you are a bit interesting. I never ran across a man just like you—so near the cave man, I think," she said, calmly studying him.

Attracted in spite of herself to him, she made up her mind to pay him for his cool confiscation of her car and also prevent him if she could from ever reaching her father, for she was convinced that her companion was a process server—a young lawyer who had volunteered to see to it that her father got the papers which would require his appearance in an annoying lawsuit.

She reached forward, and with practiced hand jerked the ignition key from its socket. The car slowed down to a standstill.

He turned around, smiling. "Now, little girl, you must be good. Return that key, or right here I must take it away from you by force, and I almost think I would like to."

She clung to the key, almost wishing that he would try for the sake of experience of having him, and yet angry at his calm assumption that he could take it from her. She returned the key with the feeling that here was a new kind of male.

The car rolled smoothly on, and then, over a rough bit of road, began to bump suggestively. She laughed in spite of herself. The old tire on the rear wheel had gone flat.

He stripped off his coat. "It's a case of putting on your spurs, and here goes!"

He laid his coat in the seat. Her eyes caught the glint of a legal-looking envelope, and a wild plan leaped into being. Cautiously, she drew out the envelope, extracted the contents, and replaced it, and sat innocently back.

"Two at the same game," she thought with delight.

Once more, he took his seat, first glancing at the pocket to make sure his envelope was there, and the eventful journey continued.

Under the guidance of his capable hands, the car rapidly covered the remaining miles, and he came to the goal of his effort—the entrance to the Bellows home. He mounted the steps triumphantly.

"If you will wait, I will be glad to drive to your home or to town," he said gravely.

"This is my home," she said sweetly. He hesitated, then she saw his strong jaw set. "I am sorry it should be this way, but I have no choice."

Then he went in.

The sound of voices reached her through the open door, her father's deep laughter loudest. Then the would-be process server came out and she skipped in.

When she returned, her hold-up man was far down the road swinging with steady strides toward her. She slid hurriedly into her car, pressed the throttle, and soon caught up with him. He turned a smiling face, and it dawned upon her that he was a good winner and besides a good loser.

"What, Michael, did you do with those papers?" he asked, a man's broad grin on his face.

She laughed. "I just gave them to father! I have always thought he ought to go and testify—and the other reason—well, I just plain like you!"

"Well, it's the frank admission in his eyes startled her. 'I certainly will, because I want to show you my greatest success as about a million years old!'"

Mr. and Mrs. Switz Will Stay in Prison

Paris, March 29 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, Americans held on espionage charges, made their monthly appearance in court today to learn that their imprisonment will be prolonged at least another month.

It was indicated that the couple will stay behind the bars of a French prison until they are brought to trial, if for no other reason than to escape the vengeance of persons whom they are alleged by police to have implicated as international spies.

The investigating magistrate said he would continue his examinations of other suspects before submitting his findings to a court which will set the date for trial.

Torpedo Fish Served as Electric Rheumatic Cure

Electrical treatments for rheumatism are by no means a recent invention, in fact ancient records reveal that these were available long before man understood how to harness this force of nature for his own use. The torpedo, or electric ray, probably the best known of all fishes capable of giving electric shocks, furnished the treatment relates a writer in the Detroit News.

In Roman times physicians not infrequently advised their gout and rheumatism patients to stand barefooted on one of these queerly shaped flat fishes, which are abundant in most warm waters, until its shock-giving power was exhausted.

Modern scientists who have subjected this fish to numerous experiments say that its electric power is generated by two kidney-shaped organs located on each side of its head. Mottened even went so far as to ascertain that the torpedo is capable of giving a shock comparable to that given by a voltaic pile of 100 to 150 pairs of plates.

The use said to have been made of the fish by ancient physicians, and the little fear of the species shown by natives of countries where it is found, indicate that the torpedo could not give a human being a strong enough shock to cause him much inconvenience. Nevertheless the electric powers of this fish serve as an effective weapon against its natural enemies and valuable aid in securing its prey.

Dragon Fly Eggs Laid in Water, Close to Surface

The eggs of the dragon fly are laid in the water. As the female flies slowly over the pond, close to its surface, she repeatedly dips the tip of her abdomen below the surface and fastens the eggs to an object just below the water level. When these eggs hatch, they produce a band of masked marauders, which must be a terror to the other small pond creatures.

The nymphs, as the young are called, are mud-colored. The head is broad and angular, with prominent eyes and short feelers. The legs are strong and stand out stiffly from the edge of the chest, and the abdomen is broad and flattened. Concealed by its color, this creature lies upon the muddy bottom of the pond, awaiting its prey. The mouth of the nymph, in fact most of the lower part of the head, is covered by a pair of strong, light jaws carried on a hinged arm. It is this arm that shoots out suddenly, so that the jaws can grasp the prey and return it, as the arm folds back in place, to the powerful, crushing jaws of the mouth.

The eggs that the dragon fly deposits one summer, hatch to nymphs that grow during successive moults and finally transform to the adult, the following spring.

Starlings

Although noisy, the starling is one of the most interesting species of bird life, says a writer in the Chicago Tribune. About the size of a thrush, the starling appears to be black at a distance. When seen close at hand the purple, green, and blue of its plumage can be observed. Farmers always are glad to see large flocks of starlings in their fields, as these birds are voracious insect eaters. In flight a flock of starlings presents a majestic sight. The birds fly in close formation, and a large flock of them resembles a black cloud. The flock wheels, turns, ascends, and descends with remarkable precision. In cities, particularly during the breeding season, the starlings become a nuisance because of their noise.

Natural Hot Water

In Reykjavik, the capital of Iceland, some of the churches and quite a number of the houses are heated with a natural hot water supply. About twenty-five miles to the north of the town there is one of the most remarkable groups of geysers in the world. In the course of the year they throw up many millions of gallons of scalding water, and by means of a system of reinforced concrete pipes and a pumping station some of the water is conveyed to Reykjavik, where it is employed for heating buildings and also to provide a supply of hot water. Several pumps from which water can be drawn below boiling point can be drawn are established in the streets.

PROTECT YOURSELF From "BOOTLEG" MERCHANDISE!

*The Ads in the Freeman
Safeguard Your Buying*

INFERIOR "depression" merchandise is still flooding the country on the look-out for "suckers" who will buy. These goods are below a wholesome standard of quality—not worth the money or anywhere near it! Whether you order a quart of ice cream for Junior's birthday party or a brace of shirts for friend husband you cannot afford to take chances with this sub-standard merchandise.

How can you avoid being bilked on inferior goods—endangered by foodstuffs prepared in unsanitary surroundings—cheated on commodities made by children or sweated labor? There are two safe ways!

First, patronize reputable merchants. Certainly, avoid buying from the door-to-door peddler you know nothing about!

Second, read and shop regularly through the ads in The Freeman. Dealers who sell goods of sound quality do not hesitate to advertise them in the newspaper where you can read, study and compare their qualifications and prices. An advertiser who must spend money to tell you about his goods seldom endangers his investment by falsehoods and misrepresentation. A consistent advertiser whose business reputation depends on your continued good will never does!

Freeman Ads Protect Your Pocketbook

When you read The Freeman ads you can compare any merchant's offering for quality, description and price with others in the paper. You're protecting yourself against POOR quality and unreasonable charges. The reputable advertising merchant knows this. He welcomes your comparison. He knows it will build up your sense of discrimination, teach you to appreciate his own worthwhile goods and save you from making future mistakes.

Freeman Ads Safeguard Your Time

You'll have more time for leisure if you let The Freeman ads plan each shopping trip for you. Before you leave home you'll know just which stores you're going to visit and what you're going to buy. No time wasted in walking around town comparing items and prices in a dozen different stores. You've done all that BEFOREHAND—in the pages of The Freeman! Shopping through the ads gives you extra hours for doing the things you LIKE to do!

Freeman Ads Assure Lasting Satisfaction

When you've made it a habit to buy from reputable merchants you know about—from advertisers who aren't afraid to let you compare their offerings side by side with others—THEN you'll find yourself getting longer life, more wear, and a fuller, lasting satisfaction from all your purchases. You'll know just where to find quality. You'll be a discriminating buyer. If all women bought as carefully, the makers of inferior "sucker-bait" goods would have to quit business.

And the NRA Does Its Part

When you shop the ads remember to look for the familiar little symbol that provides the best protection of all! Goods advertised "NRA" mean that no little children drudged weary hours in their making—no tired men and women slaved in a sweat-shop for a pitiful wage. "NRA" assures you that your purchase is made and sold by well-paid men and women who like their jobs well enough to bring you a carefully made, quality product!

Rosenberg's Hebrews To Play Walkill
Sammy Rosenberg and his Hebrew-Americans will play the "A" team at Walkill Prison, Saturday night, starting at 7:30, he announced today.

Rosenberg expects to defeat the prisoners and thus fortify his club for its tussle with "Dolly" Tesslo's Z. N. P. quintet next Tuesday night at White Eagle Hall, Delaware avenue.

The game at the White Eagle will be the third between the two teams, each having won one.

Said Sammy at the end of his announcements, "We want to challenge the winners of the Kendall-Seneca series. The Hebrew-Americans beat the Senecas on their home court once this year and I believe we can trim them again or the Kendalls".

New York, March 29 (AP)—The largely to the efforts of a husky middleweight, Gus Lesenar, and Mark Hoagh, New York's even glove amateur boxer, who even terms with their Chicago competition today after seven years of intense competition.

The double victory of Lesenar, who uses his muscles to juggle his dishes during his seven-hour, and Hoagh, a veteran boxer, provided the only break in the even division of the bout. They fought two battles in each vision. The final count was 10-9 in favor of New York and Hoagh, while Lesenar upset Francisco Caserio, last year's inter-city champion.

A crowd of 19,467 packed each inch of space in Madison Square Garden, paying $45,548.77 to the scraps.

Baseball fans generally know Bob Quinn, the general manager of the Boston Nationals, as a shrewd manager of men and an expert on the business side of the game. But Quinn's baseball knowledge was not always so obvious. He was a pitcher in the minor leagues and a player in the major leagues. He was a pitcher in the minor leagues and a player in the major leagues. He was a pitcher in the minor leagues and a player in the major leagues.

Lots of Batting Power.
Batting power, however, is not what the club needs most. With several new short-stops, Lou Gehrig, Ben Chapman, Tom Lutz, and Bill Hickey, in addition to Ruth, plenty of punch will be available, but it won't do much good to average around seven runs per game unless the pitching department checks the opposition.

This puts the main issue squarely up to the big red-headed right-hander, Charles Rufus Haffner, and Senior Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, whose decline in effectiveness last year represented the difference between a world championship club in 1932 and a second-place outfit in 1933.

If both Haffner and Gomez return to top form, McCarthy will have plenty of pitching for Johnny Allen and Russ Van Atta, sophomore southpaw, figure to do even better than last year, when Allen won 15 and Van Atta 12.

From the group including Charley Devenes, George Chle, Danny MacFadden, Johnny Hoenes, Harry Smythe, Floyd Newkirk and Jimmy DeShong, the Yankees will select four or five reserves for relief work and double-header duty.

With at least one infielder and outfielder to spare, Lyn Lary and Myril Hoaga, Manager McCarthy has been anxious to fortify his pitching department by the trade route but so far his overtures to rival clubs have not been fruitful.

The Infield.
For the second time in three years the Yankees plan to start the season with two infielders. The experiment did not click long in 1932 when Jack Saltsaver started at second and Frank Crosetti on third but McCarthy appears to have decided Rolfe will do all the shortstopping necessary and team up with Don Heffner, the Baltimore recruit, at second.

The shakeup puts Lutzeri on third and leaves Crosetti and Saltsaver as the likely utility infielders. Lary may replace one of these two, if he is not traded. First base will be well taken care of by the iron man, Lou Gehrig, who appears ready for one of his biggest years.

Outer Garden Men.
Sam Byrd, a great spring hitter, probably will start in centerfield, flanked by Chapman and Ruth, but Earle Combs is still available. Hoag has been understudying Ruth in exhibition games but Dixie Walker is being groomed to succeed the Babe, if and when the great man makes his final return as a regular.

Bill Dickey, minus his appendix, will do all the backstopping necessary but he has a promising young understudy in Norman Kles, up from the Newark farm. Arndt Jorgens also is available.

ST. MARY'S SCOUTS SCORE WIN OVER YOUNG ISRAELS

St. Mary's Scouts playing at the Downtown Jewish Community Center Wednesday night defeated the Young Israel, 21-16. Tommy Madden starring for the winners with 11 points and Fertil for the Israelis with the same number.

Individual scores: Scouts—Madden 11, L. Geus 2, Straley 4, Albany 4, total 21. Israelis—Fertil 11, Samuels 4, Dubin 1, total 16. Score at half time: Scouts 9, Israelis 9. Referee, Spiegel.

Baseball fans generally know Bob Quinn, the general manager of the Boston Nationals, as a shrewd manager of men and an expert on the business side of the game. But Quinn's baseball knowledge was not always so obvious. He was a pitcher in the minor leagues and a player in the major leagues. He was a pitcher in the minor leagues and a player in the major leagues. He was a pitcher in the minor leagues and a player in the major leagues.

All this happened around the turn of the century but it did not halt Quinn's baseball progress. He had a club in the old Inter-State league, representing Columbus, at the time that Ed Barrow, now business manager of the Yankees, was breaking in Hans Wagner as a rookie. Later Quinn directed the Columbus American Association team for years, then went with the St. Louis Browns as business manager and in 1924 headed a syndicate that bought the Red Sox, becoming president of the club.

Howdy as a Flagboy?
Hank Gowdy was one of the stars Quinn sent to the majors and thereby hangs one of Bob's most interesting stories.

As a kid, Gowdy and one of his boy friends used to hang around the Columbus park, Quinn recalls. "They were persistently underfoot and finally when Hank asked me if there wasn't something he could do I asked him, more in jest than in earnest, how he would like to sweep out the grandstand."

"He not only accepted the job but agreed to come in at 4 o'clock in the morning to do it. He also hauled up the flags before the game. One day, as I went out, just before the game, I noticed the flags were not up. There was no sign of Gowdy. I was a little annoyed by that but the next day, the same thing happened and in addition we found the pennant banner torn and on the ground at the foot of the pole. Still no signs of Gowdy. The next day when he appeared I was so mad I chased him right out of the office."

Finally he came back and explained. It seemed he had been playing ball on the first day the flags failed to go up on time and forgotten what time it was. The next day, in trying to get the championship flag up, he had pulled too hard and a piece of wire had cut clear through. Thoroughly scared, he ran right out of the park without waiting for his bawling out.

"It wasn't long afterward that young Gowdy was working out with the team and showing signs of becoming a real ball-player. He broke in, however, as a first baseman. John McGraw converted him into a catcher and later, with the Boston Braves, he was the hero of George Stallings' 1914 miracle team."

Stallings Called the Turn
"Speaking of 1914, after which we gave Gowdy a wonderful homecoming celebration in Columbus, I always recall a remark Stallings made to me the day before the start of the world series between the Braves and the Philadelphia Athletics," continued Quinn.

"George turned to me and said: 'Bob, they tell me old Connie Mack has been saving that Indian, Bender, for eight days to fire at us in the opening game. If we beat him tomorrow, we will win four straight. And every man on our club feels just as confident as I do.'"

As most everyone knows, the Braves fulfilled Stallings' prediction by beating Bender and proceeded to astound the baseball world and the Athletics by running out the series in four games.

Training Camp Briefs

(By The Associated Press.)

Cubs.
Los Angeles, March 29 (AP)—Worried over his batting slump (a slump to Mr. Klein is when he hits less than .310), Chuck Klein, hitting hope of the Cubs, is studying timing. "When you get in a slump," says Chuck, "don't worry! Study your timing and all will be well."

White Sox.
Los Angeles—Zeke Bonura, the six-foot, 205 pound rookie from Dallas of the Texas League, is more than living up to expectations as a hitter for the White Sox.

The first baseman has been hammering the ball hard and against the Cubs yesterday collected two singles and a home run.

Giants.
Orlando, Fla.—The champion New York Giants took the long route home today minus one of the players who worked at their Miami Beach training camp. Ed Wineapple, left-handed pitcher who hurled for Providence College several years ago, was turned over to the Buffalo International as the Giants broke camp.

Yankees.
St. Petersburg, Fla., March 29 (AP)—Fred (Dixie) Walker, young Yankee outfielder, is consulting a dentist instead of the club trainer to find out why he can't throw a ball from the outfield properly. Trying to find the cause of the lameness in his shoulder, which he first thought came from a pulled ligament, Walker found a couple of infected teeth which might be causing the trouble so he is taking a few days off to have them extracted.

PORT EWEN SCOUTS TRIM THE ROCKETS, 30-26
The Port Ewen Scouts recently scored a 30-26 victory over the Rockets of Kingston as indicated by the following list of scores: Port Ewen—G. Clark 13, S. Van Kleeck 5, W. Clark 5, L. Lund 7, total 30. Rockets—Bruce 7, Coughlin 3, Toffel 4, Brooks 4, Rowland 8, total 26. Score at half time: Scouts 12, Rockets 6. Referee, Johnson; timer, Leiching.

"Rabbit" Maranville Breaks His Left Leg

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 29 (AP)—Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, second baseman on the Boston Braves, lay in a hospital today with a broken left leg, but Manager Bill McKechnie said physicians gave him hope that "The Rabbit" would be back in the lineup before the end of the 1934 season.

Maranville, playing one of the best games of his 23 years in the big leagues, ran for home in the last half of the eighth inning during an exhibition game here, yesterday with the New York Yankees. He crossed the plate standing up, fell over—out of the lineup with a fracture midway between the knee and the ankle. He is 43 years old.

Dick Gyselman will take over second base for the Braves, McKechnie said, but the accident left the team without infield reserves.

PUZZLED?

Let's see what EXPERIENCED smokers are buying

These men know cigars. And they won't buy any cigar—regardless of price—that doesn't meet their taste demands.

Let's ask dealers what cigar these hard-to-please smokers like best.

Let's ask them what cigar most of their customers like best.

Dealers—almost without exception—will answer: Bayuk "PHILLIES". They say—and sales records prove it—that more men smoke Bayuk "Phillies" than any other cigar on the counter.

When you try Bayuk "Phillies"—remember this. It's not a 5c cigar. It's America's former largest-selling 10c brand reduced to 5c. Read Bayuk's Guarantee.

This guaranteed 10c quality makes the vast difference that separates Bayuk "Phillies" from other cigars now selling for 5c.

Bayuk's Guarantee

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe Domestic and Havana long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.
